

Theatrical performance

Dr Steve Taylor's play, Blasphemy and Doubt, will be performed on the Thursday evening. It will be a "staged reading" followed by an open discussion.

Blasphemy and Doubt is the story of Robin's efforts to fight a seemingly repressive system and to seek justice for the oppressed. It highlights some of the issues involved with leading change in a socially constructed world where meaning and even reality itself can be constantly shifting. Our discussion will centre on what lessons the play holds for us in our own struggles for justice and wisdom.
